for 2 weeks & a day, had been ashore there for 2 hours, but the wine liquor was burnt ashore in the hulks as the wind the goods therefor. In the ~~40~~ <sup>art. 40</sup> ~~air~~ being asked how long he lay at anchor before the Capt's John Butterfield at Prussia, what goods were sold there otherwise says that he stayed 2 weeks some day, according to the Journal, & sold 2 anchors liquor to Jan Abraham, Fodor of Prussia; which agrees with the accounts of all the officers & sailors to the points asked them. About which description is particularly to be observed, that all except a few are Zealanders & in particular Vlamingers who have permeated themselves with a few of the several on the C. of G. well knowing that Jan Vryje was
